Little Hoppla learns that it's not always possible to be close to someone, when we want to protect each other from infectious diseases. But: can we still have fun when we can't slide closely and wildly, one after the other? And can we cuddle at a distance? Hoppla has a brilliant idea: we can greet each other like sharks, slide like penguins and cuddle like ants...

Using the play figures on the narrative theatre track, children can play out their experiences during the Corona phase: suddenly, Emma and Paul may not visit Grandma and Grandpa, they cannot go to the zoo, and Mom and Dad wear mouth-and-nose masks! Emma and Paul also try on masks, to see how they feel. And they practice protecting themselves and others from the virus, by thoroughly washing their hands and coughing into their elbows.

Once upon a time, there was a poor little girl, who had only the clothes she wore and a piece of bread. Again and again, she gave away bits of the bread and the few clothes she wore to hungry people who were very cold. Finally, she stood naked and alone in a forest. Then suddenly, stars fell down from the heavens as golden coins...

After the summer holidays, Betül, Nele and their friends at day care have lots to tell each other. All of them wonder over the treasures brought from lands far and near: how wonderful the world is, and how important it is to take care of it! The children quickly decide to work consciously on protecting nature. Finally, they celebrate a big Thanksgiving party, because it's clear to everyone that we all must give thanks for the treasures of nature.

Stell dir vor ...

... du wanderst in den Bergen

Mit geschlossenen Augen stell dir vor, du wanderst in den Bergen! Du hast Wanderstiefel an dein Füßchen und in dem Bergtasche mit Proviant ist dein Schutzmantel. Die Sonne scheint und die Luft ist klar. Weit oben auf einem Berg schwebst du von hier unten aus das Gipfelkreuz der Berge. Du wirst dich mit der Schwung und dem Schweben machen du dich auf den Weg.

Es geht es mir etwas bringen. Um dich herum Jahre, du hast weiße Blumenweiden, auf denen Kühle spüren. Du hast ihre Kugeln kühlen. Ein schmalen Rücken plüschert den Berg hinauf, an die Spitze. In Richtung Süd, du hast deine Hände in die eisigen Wasser und schwebst deinen Körper. Wenn du machst, tröste auch etwas Bergwasser. Körper. Wenn du machst, tröste auch etwas Bergwasser. Körper. Wenn du machst, tröste auch etwas Bergwasser. Körper.

Dann geht es steller bergauf. Um dich herum Jahre, du hast einen und Gefühl, nur an wenigen Stellen haben sich vorwärts zu bewegen und spürst keine Blasen. Wenn du durch den Stein gehst, die Sonne strahlt warm und du fühlst die Wärme des Wanders in deinem Körper. Wenn du fühlst die Wärme des Wanders in deinem Körper. Wenn du fühlst die Wärme des Wanders in deinem Körper.

In deiner Fantasie ist alles möglich. Den Gipfel hast du schon erreicht. Du überlässt und fühlst. Das ist es, was du strengst. Aber es macht auch Spaß. Klettere in deinem Tempo beruht: deine Hände und Füße und fühle die Kraft, die du in dir hast.

Dann erreichst du den Gipfel, den höchsten Punkt des Berges. Von hier aus kannst du in alle Richtungen schauen. Du siehst weite Berge, malte Gipfel und schone Landschaft. Gemalte ist fantastische Aussicht und fühle, wie dein Atem sich nach und nach beruhigt.

Die Sonne scheint auf deine Schatten und auf dein Gesicht. Ein leichtes Windchen weht über deine Haare. Hände und Füße sind warm vom Wandern und Klettern. Fühle deinen Körper und dein eigenes Atem.

Bewege ganz leicht deine Finger und Hände. Bewege ganz langsam deine Zehen und Füße. Bewege deinen Mund und deine Nase. Öffne deine Augen. Fühle dich ein wenig anders an als vorher!

Fühle dich ein wenig anders an als vorher! Fühle dich ein wenig anders an als vorher! Fühle dich ein wenig anders an als vorher!

Guiding the Challenging Behaviour of Very Young Children in Day Care

by Cornelia Korreng

19.5 x 17.5 cm, paperback, colour photos, includes download code

for observation and reflection work sheets

€ (D) 19,00

ISBN 978-3-7698-2478-0

What's behind it when very young children bite, hit, pull hair, scratch or kick others? How can care givers react when children can't yet manage their impulses? And how can care givers express in conversations with parents that this behaviour is challenging for pedagogic professionals, but that the children shouldn't therefore be labeled as behaviourally conspicuous. Cornelia Korreng describes situations from daily life in day cares, explains the feelings and needs of children which could be behind apparently aggressive behaviour and offers a practical catalogue of questions for observing, reflecting and seeking explanations.

Mean Witch has put a spell on Crocodile to win first prize at the Home Pet Competition. But Crocodile is totally unhappy with his new colour. Can Kasperl and Seppel free him from his awkward predicament?

A classic Kasperl stage play, during which even the youngest in the audience can participate, laugh along and shout advice at the characters. In contrast to puppet theater, operators using the narrative track remain visible during the performance and maintain direct contact with their audience. In this way, very young viewers need not fear magicians, witches or crocodiles.

Soon Saint Nick will arrive. Emma and Paul craft little bags decorated with glittering stars and sing festive songs. A bell rings. It's Saint Nicholas, who gives the children apples, nuts and chocolate. Three wise astrologers follow a star that leads them to Bethlehem, to Jesus in a manger in an animal stall. They have brought precious gifts. They tell nothing of this to King Herod, who fears this child. They return home on a different road. With these ready-to-use figures and backgrounds, children re-enact the story of the Holy Three Kings on the narrative track. While playing, crafting, listening and telling stories, children engage intensively with this aspect of the Christmas story.

God promises Abraham: “Your descendants will be as many as the stars in the heavens.” But how shall that happen? Abraham and Sarah are old, and have no children. Then one day, they are visited by three unusual strangers... With these ready-to-use figures and backgrounds, children re-enact stories from the Old Testament on the narrative track. While playing, crafting, listening and telling stories, children engage intensively with God’s promise to Abraham.

- Students choose a motivation, location, protagonists and antagonists from the story-aspect cards
- Students then organize their story-aspect cards on the playing board, answering the vital questions: where? who? what? where to? how?
- The set also includes a methods handbook for teachers

With their unlimited imaginations, students have the best foundation for inventing good and exciting stories. Whether individually or in small groups, the “Big Story-building Set” can help them to find a storyline, to organize it into a time sequence and then to tell the resulting story.

- children visit and explore a church
- work task sheets about architecture, design and inventory of church rooms for Protestant and Catholic churches
- for pre-school, elementary school and as preparation for First Communion

 For 6 to 10 years

In almost every community, no matter how small, a church tower rises into the heavens. But why is that so? And what's behind the high walls of the church buildings? With these practical picture cards, children from the age of five can explore churches both inside and out. With search games, work task sheets and child-appropriate information, they can discover the architecture and inventory of the churches. They learn the meaning of symbols, the christening basin, the altars and candles. They also learn much about the differences and similarities between Protestant and Catholic churches.
